Milprint Names A High Official

The appointment of H. O. Ranger as vice president for research and development of Milprint, Inc., effective Sept. 23, was announced last week by James B. Kurtzweil, president of the flexible materials manufacturer.

Mr. Ranger has been manager of packaging development at the research center of the St. Regis Paper Company since 1962. Before joining St. Regis, he was associated with the General Foods Corporation and with the Ansco division of the General Aniline & Film Corporation. At Milprint, a subsidiary of Philip Morris, Inc., he will fill a post made vacant by the death of Drury R. Burton.

A graduate of the University of Maine, where he received a B.S. degree, Mr. Ranger completed graduate work at the American University, from which he received an M.A. degree.

Milprint, with corporate offices and research and development laboratories at Milwaukee, makes packaging for the food and non-food industries through manufacturing facilities in Downingtown, Pa., De Pere and Milwaukee, Wis., and San Francisco, Calif. The company's Koch Convertograph division, producer of labels for bottles and other containers, is in Evansville, Ind.
